

"Such a type of work is never perfect. You must declare it to be perfect, if you have done all you can in time and circumstances." Goethe